

Project CURANT

Cohousing and case management for unaccompanied young adult refugees in Antwerp

Video

A short 6 minutes documentary that represents the evolution but also the importance and innovative character of the project CURANT. In this video, we give the word to the people involved on the project and also explain CURANT main milestones.

What

We did three tasks for the project CURANT by city of Antwerp. CURANT wants to improve the integration and social network of young refugees through cohabitation with a peer (buddy) and intensive supervision.

Who

EPSCO is a team of International Students studying at Artesis Plantijn University College Antwerp, taking part in the European Project Semester.

Event

We organised an event to promote a connection between a CURANT cohousing space, Brem 16, and the neighbourhood. Through community organizing and event management, EPSCO created an event for people of all ages. This event was filled with many activities (football workshop, circus initiation, sport activities...) and an exchange of tasty cuisine from hand-made pancakes and traditional middle eastern food.

Site visit

CURANT is hosting an international conference of UIA about "Integrations of migrants and refugees". A part of it, is a site visit on BREM 16, where we will help CURANT coordinate an exhibition. CURANT will evaluate its project and talk about the main concepts surrounding it in front of an international audience.

Where

The CURANT project takes place in different places in the city of Antwerp. The event and the site visit were in BREM 16 in Lange Bremstraat Merksem.

When

The Project takes place from February to June 2019

There are different dates and deadlines for each task:

- Event: 27th April
- Video: 2 June
- Site Visit: 13th June

Why

The main goal of this team is to present an accurate and objective insight about the CURANT project and improve their visibility to the local and international audience, focusing our contribution on the international conference.

How

With a multidisciplinary team that was divided in equal working groups that used their different skills and backgrounds to achieve the final results.
